aim of the subject

The aim of the course is to provide students with an opportunity for professional development through projects or performances outside the educational context.

content

Students will participate in various field-related projects, events and research activities outside the academic context (events promoting the field, performances at schools, international projects, large-scale master classes, etc.), both as ensemble members and soloists.

learning outcomes

On completion of the activities during the subject, students will have acquired additional skills and experience:

- in research as well as in preparing and making presentations,
- in pedagogic activities,
- as professional musicians, performing in different situations and various ensemble settings.

assessment

Non-differentiated assessment. Positive result will be confirmed with the statement of the Head of Department of the Rector's Office.

To receive a positive assessment result in the field of instrumental pedagogy, students are required to carry out at least two activities listed in the content of this subject.

assessment criteria

Positive assessment result is obtained when the student has carried out an activity set out in the content of this subject. Students enrolled in the curriculum of instrumental pedagogy are required to complete at least two of the activities listed in the content.
